Whereas(1): The State of Texas has a very rich history that sets it apart from most others. Texas has been a territory of numerous nations, as well as being its own sovereign republic from 1836 until its time of annexation as the 28th state of The Union in 1845. Since becoming a member of the United States, Texas has prospered as a leading force in the economy, national security, and is often recognized for its patriotism, and resilience; and,

Whereas(2): In order for Texas to develop into the contributing member of the United States it is today, its founders had to fight for its independence. Many brave Texans and volunteers risked it all in pursuit of their freedoms. The values held steadfast by the founding Texans are still held by Texans today; and,

Resolved(2): Texas A&M's hospitality and core values stem from the Texans who came before us. The Student Senate welcomes people of all backgrounds and is proud to be serving one of the finest educational institutions in Texas. The 71st Session encourages students to reflect on those who came before us and realize that we are not just Aggies, but Fightin' Texas Aggies.; and,
